From where I sit ... Joe Marsh

Watch Out For The Symptoms!

Laughed out loud when I heard Hoot Davis was down with Chicken Pox. A man of forty-five catching a kid's disease!

So I want to see him, armed with jokes about "second childhood" but forgot them fast when I got there. Hoot looked terrible and had quite a fever.

While we talked, I come to think of how Chicken Pox is a lot like other "diseases"—diseases of the character, such as intolerance, self-righteousness or just plain ignorance. They're excusable in children, but when they come out in adults they're ten times as bad—and can be mighty "contagious."

From where I sit, we should all watch out for the "symptoms"—little things like criticising a person's preference for a friendly glass of temperate beer or ale. We've seen personal freedom wither away in other countries, when individual intolerance was allowed to get out of hand and become a nation-wide epidemic.

Volunteers are mighty important to the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. During the fall when farmers are bringing in their harvests, an outstanding group of U. S. Savings Bonds volunteers will be traveling the country telling people about Bonds.

These volunteers are the cartoonists who draw your favorite comic strips and they will put on a show in connection with a Treasury Department sponsored art exhibit, "20,000 Years of Comics," in several American cities. They are freely giving of their time and effort to continue telling their readers that U. S. Savings Bonds are the safest and best investment in the world.

Sermon By Dr. Williams

of this writer in a secular magazine the present world situation will be transformed if all Christians were to link themselves actively with the church and these churches quickened movements, about which, as it to be learned from newspapers, though it is news of first importance. Because, in his opinion, is vitally important and of special interest to millions of Christians this author wrote his article, which he concluded by saying that he would go so far as to declare the signs of spiritual renaissance and the duty of all Christians to devote themselves to bring it about more important than the European battle or not having the atomic bomb.

Surely the state of affairs in our nation calls urgently for such dedication. 6,000,000 of our fellow citizens have criminal records. On the average every twenty-four hours are 36 murders, 33 rapes, 185 felonious assaults, 172 robberies, 620 stolen automobiles, 1,000 miscellaneous larcenies. The annual crime bill is over $15,000,000,000 annually. Prisoners in penal institutions are twice as many in proportion to population as they were twenty years ago; half of those convicts are under 21 years of age and it is estimated that 80 per cent of crime is committed by school-aged youth. The annual alcoholic drink bill is $8,500,000,000, with an estimated 750,000 alcoholics, 3,500,000 excessive drinkers, and 58,000,000 who drink with more or less regularity.

To such a state of affairs we have come - a nation obviously with a divine mission in the world. There is still more of challenge to some missions in the light of the world situation.

I. THE WORLD. "Jerusalem, all Judea, Samaria, and the uttermost part of the earth." Our obligation as Christians does not end with our national boundaries. If nothing else indicated that fact, it would be plain from the unparalled way in which people from almost all nations have gathered here in the United States. Here, as to no other land in all history, they have come from the uttermost part of the earth. It has been noted that the far-reaching influence of Pentecost was largely due to the fact that, as we read in Acts, "there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation un'er heaven." What they saw and experienced at Jerusalem they carried back with them to the lands whence they had come. Suppose our foreign-born residents and visitors were to see and experience here in the United States something of the redeeming, transforming power of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. Stephen, himself a converted immigrant, declared that the key to the evangelization of the world is in the evangelization of this country - the task of home missions.

When that embassy from Babylon came to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem, the prophet asked him, "What have they seen in thy house?" That is a question every American Christian should be facing very seriously these days. In our home life, our social life, our business life, we click - do our personal life, what is it they see - these people who have stayed in their homes land? Do they see real Christian-ity in its beauty and its power, making home life unselfish, and social life clean, and business life honest, and civic life faithful, and personal life God -fearing and God-serving? Do they see the difference the Gospel makes where it is believed and lived, so that they are won to it and become evangelists of it, whether they stay here or return across the seas?

There may have been times when the emphasis in the work of the church should properly have been put on something else. But now for us it is the Home Missions hour, for the most vital and far-reaching task of the church now is the speedy and thorough evangelization of our own land. Without that "spiritual renaissance," the urgent need for which is recognized increasingly even by those who are not Christians, our tanks and planes and battleships and atom bombs will prove but another Maginot Line. To miss the present opportunity in the face of the threatening perils would be the greatest of fatalities. To seize it as we ought and can, to become morally and spiritually prepared for the place the providence of God has given to our nation supremely among all the nations of the world, would be to hasten as nothing else could the ultimate triumph when "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever."

Two Illinois Men Certain To Remember These Ladies

LEWISTOWN, Ill. — Two Illinois men will long remember the girls they left behind them— in fact, they'll never hear the end of it.

J. D. Raker of Liverpool, Ill., brought the anecdote back from a recent western trip.

He and James Raker of Liverpool, Ill., stopped for gas and oil at Kingman, Ariz., one night. They got out for a smoke and a coke, leaving their wives in the car. Shortly afterward, they returned and started for Williams, Calif.

About 135 miles from Kingman James Raker chattily addressed his wife. No answer. J. D. Raker then chanced conversation with HIS wife. Silence. A mutual double-take disclosed a uninhabited back seat.

Several hours and 135 miles later the men were rejoined with the by now extremely talkative girls they'd left behind them.

Peanut Butch Profits Much By Fair-Goers' Carelessness

ZANESVILLE, Ohio — County fair-goers are a careless lot, and that's perfectly all right with Earl Kibble, bewhiskered peanut butcher who works various county fair grounds.

Kibble is an early riser, not because he expects to sell peanuts before breakfast, but because it's a good time to search for coins which have been dropped carelessly the night before.

He scours the fairgrounds thoroughly, and is seldom disappointed. He reports finding $10.46 at Urbana, $3.24 at Wilmington, and $20.50 at Charleston, W. Va.

Except that his beard is too dark, Kibble reminds one of Santa Claus, which is not strange, because he lets his beard grow all year in order to play Santa for the children of his neighborhood in Reedsville, Ohio. He shaves once each year—on New Year's day.

Hearing Aid Battery Found to Hold Power Best if Refrigerated

NEW YORK. — Unlike bananas, hearing aid batteries should be kept in the re-frig-er-ator. That is the caution from one of the country's biggest dry cell battery makers.

Winter or summer, when not in use, surplus dry cell "A" batteries for hearing aids will last longer when kept at about the 45 degree fahrenheit temperature of the average refrigerator, according to W. S. Allen, general manager, Electrical Division, Olin Industries, Inc.

As an added precaution, the batteries should be kept in a tightly sealed glass container which will reduce humidity and also prevent damage to the batteries by spilling anything on them in the refrigerator.

Economy-minded users of hearing aids customarily keep enough batteries on hand to rotate them in use, but unless these extra batteries are kept in a cool, dry place, they are likely to deteriorate, Allen warned, because the chemicals in a battery are harmed by heat.

Owing to the wide variety of hearing aids and the varied lengths of time which individual hearing aid owners use them, it is sometimes difficult to give more than rule of thumb advice on hearing aid "A" battery use and rotation. Generally it is a good idea to let a battery rest from two to three times longer than it is used. While a dry cell battery is "resting" it has the power to recuperate. It does not, however, recuperate to the extent of its original power.

The number of surplus batteries kept on hand is determined by the amount of use given a hearing aid. A full day's use is the maximum for any "A" battery to be used without rotation. It is a convenience in rotating batteries to number them and use them in order.

Nylon Plastic May Give Aid To Many Arthritis Victims

BOSTON. — Thousands of crippled arthritis victims have a chance of being able to walk normally again through the use of nylon.

Two Boston doctors—Dr. John Kuhns and Dr. Theodore A. Potter — have evolved a technique employing nylon which enables arthritis sufferers to move their wasted knee joints again.

A translucent sheet of nylon plastic is used as a "shock absorber" between the knee cap and the leg bone to prevent painful rubbing as the joint is articulated.

Treatment of damaged knee joints has bogged down in the past because the cushion of healthy tissue separating the bones has been eaten away. Attempts to insert tissue from the thigh between the knee bone ends failed to help.

Nylon plastic, the doctors said, had the advantages of not irritating the tissues, not absorbing water and not being affected by chemicals.
